

Canadas Arctic Sovereignty: Under Attack (Canadian - American Interdependence: Under Attack Book 1)

What are the threats to Canadas Arctic sovereignty? Does Canada need to be a junior partner in some form of alliance to protect its Arctic interests? From where are the threats of today and tomorrow likely to emerge? Do we have the military assets and the political intestinal fortitude to hold this portion of the second largest land mass in the world? What solutions might Canadian decision makers turn their minds to? These questions and others are raised in this publication, that comes recommended by leading international strategists, to include Major General Christie CMM, CD and Dr. Detelin Elenkov, President of the Institute of Strategic and International Studies. A good primer on the topic. The Powers bring attention to the need for Canadas decision makers to do more to protect Canadas Northern sovereignty... the military has too long been neglected... Canada has entered the period of consequences without a global security policy in place... valuable insights for those concerned about the future of Canada- Maj. Gen. Andrew Christie CMM, CD. (Canadian Army, Ret.) The Powers provide much to reflect upon in this book - Detelin Elenkov, Ph. D. (M.I.T. 92) and Professor Norris Family Chair in International Business College of Business Angelo State University and President Institute of Strategic and International Studies. This book is the first of the series Canadian and American Interdependence: Under Attack.
